Summary:

A clear, understandable summary of each blog's material can be found in the Summary's description. If Google believes the meta description provides users with a more accurate description than would be available solely from the on-page text, they may occasionally utilize it in search results snippets. No more than 150 characters should be used in a meta description. This is shown in search engine results underneath the META title and website address.

Cover Photo:

Image should be 1024 px wide. This would be the hero image at the top of the blog post. Try not to use overlay copy and logos on the image. You may run the risk of the overlay to be cropped in the different views on the website.

Step Four: Edit sections of the Editor and add your content. The Content section is where you can add your writing and other images. The ? icon is opens pop-up windows with hints and how to write content and add pictures in the body content area of the Editor.
